InspiredLiving.TV Goes Live TODAY!

Site launches in concert with UNATION, the groundbreaking new social media platform featuring Inspired Living original content

Los Angeles – November 11, 2011 – TV host, inspirational speaker and dream catcher Keri Murphy of Inspired Living announces the debut of her new website and venture, InspiredLiving.TV. The site contains TV segments featuring celebrities and other inspirational figures, advice and tips from Murphy, and a wealth of resources to help users Dream, Live and Be all that is possible.

The site debuts alongside the launch of UNATION, the most advanced, event-driven social media platform on the web. Inspired Living was honored with being one of UNATION's launch anchors. Visit the site at unation.com/inspiredliving.

InspiredLiving.TV is the culmination of years of planning and refinement of Murphy's dream to not only help others live an inspired life, but to bring together a community of contributors, products, services and interactive content to give users all the resources they need to successfully pursue their dreams and live the life they've always imagined.

"The new InspiredLiving.TV website is truly the realization of a vision I had for my life's work two years ago," explains Murphy. "Helping and inspiring others has always been my calling so I finally made the leap to focus my business on this 100%. I'm proud of the original content that my team and I have produced and am so excited to build a community that will learn, contribute, grow and ultimately realize their dreams. I'm so blessed that I've found my passion and I work every day so that others may as well!"

Visit InspiredLiving.TV and leave your video message for Murphy and this new online community using the interactive "Tell Keri Your Story" feature. Experts wishing to contribute content are also welcome to submit their story ideas and credentials to the site's editors for consideration.
